Founder & CEO
Bluesky Learning

Building Blue Sky Learning™ Toronto-based services has been the entrepreneurial dream of a lifetime. I desired to cultivate an inclusive space where equity, diversity, and well-being thrive. My lived experience, local teaching roles, international leadership, and extensive experience supporting disabled folks were all foundational moments embedded into the development of this initiative for accessibility.

I strongly believe my own struggles with disability impacts and witness to the stigma around mental health and suicide prevention throttled me forward into this pivotal moment for change.

My team members embrace neurodiversity through trauma-informed coaching and therapy and celebrate all neurotypes. We embody values of compassion, empathy, and person-centered approaches. We give the opportunity for students, professionals, parental guardian(s), and educators to connect with us regarding individual concerns & areas of growth. We strive to provide service where clients feel safe, supported, and intersectionally understood. We reduce stigma & shame cycles, deepen client understanding of internalized ableism & empower areas of avoidance to increase your personal value of motivation.
